YARNS of the TOWN

We arrived late at the Spring Slough, threading the precarious narrow to the hospitable house-boat made famous by the week-end entertainments of Andy Thompson and Walter Smith. The chill of late fall was in the night air, but the friendly light as we approached spoke of warmth and the animated ghost of Walter Smith in the gloom of the house-boat deck waved a welcome. Then there was Andy's promise that Walter would have a duck dinner waiting us to cheer our darkling progress.

"Got them ducks, Walter?" shouted the famished Dr. Furstmann, as he sprang from the launch with the painter. His mouth watered, and he drooled it.

"None," said Walter; "tough luck; only four teal!"

"Well," said the optimist of the health department, "I'd just as soon eat teal as duck."

The good doctor's flush illumined the laughing paler to whom the ignorance of this amateur was most amusing. But with the resilience of a good sport the physician came back gamely.

"A right," he said, "but you'll never fool me again. I know what a teal is now."

Art Rupin dropped his remington in the corner and winked wilyly at Walter. "Hanged if I know what it is, Doc?" he asked.

"A teal," said the doctor with conviction, "a teal is a female duck."

One night, after the dishes were washed, Andy and Dr. Furstmann engaged in an argument in which the doctor declined to see a point that, as Bob La Follette would say, stood out like a mill on a hill. Andy was a little peeved; he waived the debate aside and strode savagely to the stove to replenish the fire. En route his head came into sharp collision with a heavy lantern hanging from the ceiling.

"Careful, man, you'll break your head!" warned Dr. Furstmann.

"I might," growled Andy; "it aint so d-d thick!"

It's a far cry from war to chicken-fighting, but a discussion of defeat and victory with modern examples taken from the European war recently caused John Lyons to wax reminiscent and hark back to the days of the La Crosse Cockerel association, when that coterie of red-blooded young men, now state pillars of business, was risking its money and blooded roosters against the peft and poultry of similar-minded persons along the river.

Lyons told a tale of a memorable main at Trempealeau, in which was entered the "one ewe lamb" (only it was a he chicken) of Harry Taggart. The bird was the apple of Harry's eye. He had been conditioned for the event by Lyons, who agreed to handle him at the pit.

Great was the confidence of Tim Toolin in the chicken. Never was there such a cock, with such a long line of fighting ancestry and such courage and skill.

Judge, then, of Harry's eagerness when the feathered warrior, heeled for the contest, entered the pit. Circulating about among the Trempealeau bloods is the exulting owner. High above his head his clenched fist waves a wad of green.

"Bets on Harry Taggart's chicken! Bets on the next match!" he is calling.

No one answers him, but still through the throng about the pit he cries his proposition:

"Bets on Harry Taggart's chicken!"

Then a voice from the pit-side—the voice of John Lyons:

"Hey, Harry! Come back."

"What for? I haven't got any bets yet."

"Come back, I tell you. Never mind the bets."

"Come back nothin'! I'm gon-na get a bet!"

So Harry. Then John again, over the heads of the crowd:

"You're d-n lucky not to get a bet! Your cock's dead!"

The secretary of the retail grocers' association heard that yarn. He grinned. And then he told one on John—a later incident of that same memorable trip to Trempealeau. The cockerel association had chartered the old Steamer La Crosse, Captain Wilcox, for the trip, to carry the goodly bunch up the river to the island where the main was fought.

About dusk they got away from the island on the return trip. With the main won, and warmed by the

Some dozen high school youths who recently embarked on the project of raising mustaches today are answering derisive comments ament their not overwhelming success with a passage discovered by one of their number in the dictionary, which they insist delivers them from the ignominy of failure. The passage defines a mustache as "hair or the LIKE growing in the neighborhood of the mouth." Members of the mustache club protest that they have succeeded within the limits of the definition.

Incidentally, in the midst of Superintendent L. P. Benézet's genial countenance, there is growing to lusty, so to speak, maturity, the prototype and example which fired the students to emulation.

"COPPER" MLSNA LOSES JOB FOR BUYING OVERCOAT

North Side Patrolman Relieved of Duty by Police Commission at Meeting Last Night

NO DEFENSE OFFERED BY ACCUSED

Admitted He Bought Coat but Said He Was Innocent of Wrong Doing When He Purchased It

CHARGES PREFERRED BY WEBBER

Police Chief Learned That Officer Had Garment for Which Entire Force Searched the City

Patrolman Frank Mlsna of the La Crosse police department was last night relieved from duty by the police and fire commission, following the hearing of testimony on the charges preferred by Police Chief John B. Webber that the North side "copper" had purchased a stolen sixty-five dollar overcoat for five dollars.

The coat, which had been stolen at the Nora house, Third and King

Attorney Cameron L. Baldwin, speaking for John P. Wendling, police sergeant discharged by the police commission and reinstated by the supreme court, said no attempt would be made to reinstate Wendling until the order of the supreme court is entered in the circuit court.

The discharge of Mlsna makes the opening on the force necessary to the reinstatement of Wendling as sergeant of police.

streets, was being searched for by the entire police department while it was in the possession of Mlsna.

The furled coat was originally stolen from the Nora house by Albert Swanson. Other articles of clothing were taken by Swanson. Following Swanson's arrest for disposing of clothing belonging to Gilbert Orness, the proprietor, Swanson confessed to Webber that he had disposed of the valuable coat to a North side policeman for five dollars.

Swanson received a sentence of nine months in the penitentiary at Waupun for the theft.

Had no Attorney

At last night's hearing Mlsna put up no defense, had no witnesses and was not represented by an attorney. He told in a straightforward manner how he came to be in possession of the coat. His story to the commission was but a repetition of that told The Tribune when the original "story" of his purchase was published.

"This man came into the station and asked for lodging," he told the commission. "He was well dressed and said that he was the son of a wealthy farmer at Kilbourne and didn't want to let his folks know his financial condition. He offered to sell the coat rather than sleep in a cell. His appearance and attitude indicated that he was telling the truth. I saw an opportunity to drive a good bargain and merely took it."

Others Testify

Police Chief John B. Webber, Detective Daniel Deneen of the North side detail and Night Sergeant Michael Britton also testified.

RELIEF WORKERS UNABLE TO PENETRATE DISTRICT WRECKED BY EARTHQUAKE

GERMANS CLAMOR FOR AIR AND SEA PATROL TO CUT OFF ENGLAND

BY KARL H. VON WIEGAND United Press Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, via The Hague, Jan. 16.—Sentiment throughout Germany for an effective blockade of the English coast by mines, submarines and other devices, including raids on British merchantmen carrying foodstuffs, is increasing. The suggestions made by Grand Admiral von Tirpitz in his recent interview that submarine warfare against England's merchant fleet would prove extremely effective has been taken up in every quarter. This is especially so as far as officialdom is concerned.

It is agreed that as England is placing every possible emphasis on her plan to starve Germany out, Germany will be well within her rights if she takes aggressive action along similar lines. The use of the great aerial fleet, hitherto practically useless, is also suggested.

The Cologne Gazette which is usually inspired and whose utterances have great weight, in its leading editorial urges a relentless warfare against everything English, to be carried out with submarines and aircraft as the weapons.

"The British sea power," the editorial says, "aims at turning Germany into a concentration camp. This Germany cannot permit. She has the weapons at her disposal and must use them."

"This war must be as frightful as possible. We must think before all of saving our wives and children from the famine. Whether we wish to or not we must strike hard at England's life blood, namely, her commercial fleet. It would be weakness for us to abstain from war on commercial England as long as England wages war on our trade. Germany must blockade the British coast with her mines and her submarines and must utilize her aircraft in every way possible."

"Germany will give notice to all concerned when she will spread her mine fields around England. Then the neutral shipping for which Germany has always shown remarkable tenderness will have to take its chances."

DUTCH REPORT GERMANS LEAVING BELGIAN COAST

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 16.—The Ostend correspondent of the Tyd, says the Germans have evacuated all of the coast towns as far north as Mariakerke, but that the allies have not yet occupied them. Mariakerke still remains in German hands. The German withdrawal has been due to the continued shelling of their positions from the sea by the British and French light draft monitors and torpedo boats.

GERMANS BRING VETERAN CORPS FOR PARIS DRIVE

Second Line Holds Flemish While Cream of Army Is Sent to the Aisne

FRENCH RUSH GARRISON NORTH Reinforce Everywhere to Meet Shock of Germans' Second Attempt to Capture Capital

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Further German successes, this time in the region of Arras, are claimed today. It is stated that following a general assault by the French at this point, the Germans counter-attacked with great vigor. Two first line trenches, with their occupants, were the German prize.

La Boisselle, northeast of Albert, which has been the scene of severe fighting for the last week, is now declared definitely to be in possession of the Germans. The town has been completely demolished.

North of Soissons, it is stated there has been a lull in the operations.

In the district north of Verdun, the Germans have gained a slight advantage at Consonoye. A French attack at Ailly, southeast of Verdun, is declared to have been easily repulsed.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Fighting in the vicinity of Soissons continues unchecked. The French are maintaining their positions along the Aisne while reinforcements are being rushed to the new line in anticipation of another German attempt to hack and hew a way through the allied lines. The artillery has been placed in position covering the entire river angle and it will be impossible for the Germans to run pontoons to carry their men over.

Drive on Paris

There is no doubt now that the German general staff is planning to renew its drive against Paris. Ten army corps are reported to have been sent to the battle front stretching along the Aisne and north to Arras. They are all first line veterans who have been withdrawn from the Meuse lines and from Flanders where their places have been taken by the second line, considered sufficient to hold the positions under present conditions.

Already a part of the Paris garrison has been sent north to strengthen the frontier line and it is understood that a part of the new British army just landed will also be diverted to the present threatened front.

Paris is in no way uneasy over the developments. The frankness of the Government Forced to Refuse Tenders of Outside Aid Because of International Situation

ROME, Jan. 16.—Reports from the earthquake zone declare that the weather is changing and that a heavy fall of snow is feared. If it comes, it will complete the catastrophe. There are still thousands of persons in the stricken territory, without shelter and almost without food. Snow, under present conditions, would render the already damaged highways impassable and absolutely check the relief work. King Victor today returned to Avezzano.

(By Alice Rohe, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, Jan. 16.—Huddled in groups in the open country without food or extra clothing, many thousands of Italian peasants are facing death today. Only the outer rim of the great zone, transferred from prosperity to desolation by Wednesday's great earthquake, has been touched by the relief workers. Nothing has been done in the Campania and southern Abruzzi regions where appalling conditions are known to prevail. This is not due to lack of effort, but because entire roads have disappeared and communication is impossible, although peasant and noble, soldier and private citizen, are working side by side desperately striving to restore the roads so that the relief automobiles may proceed.

Estimate 30,000 Dead.

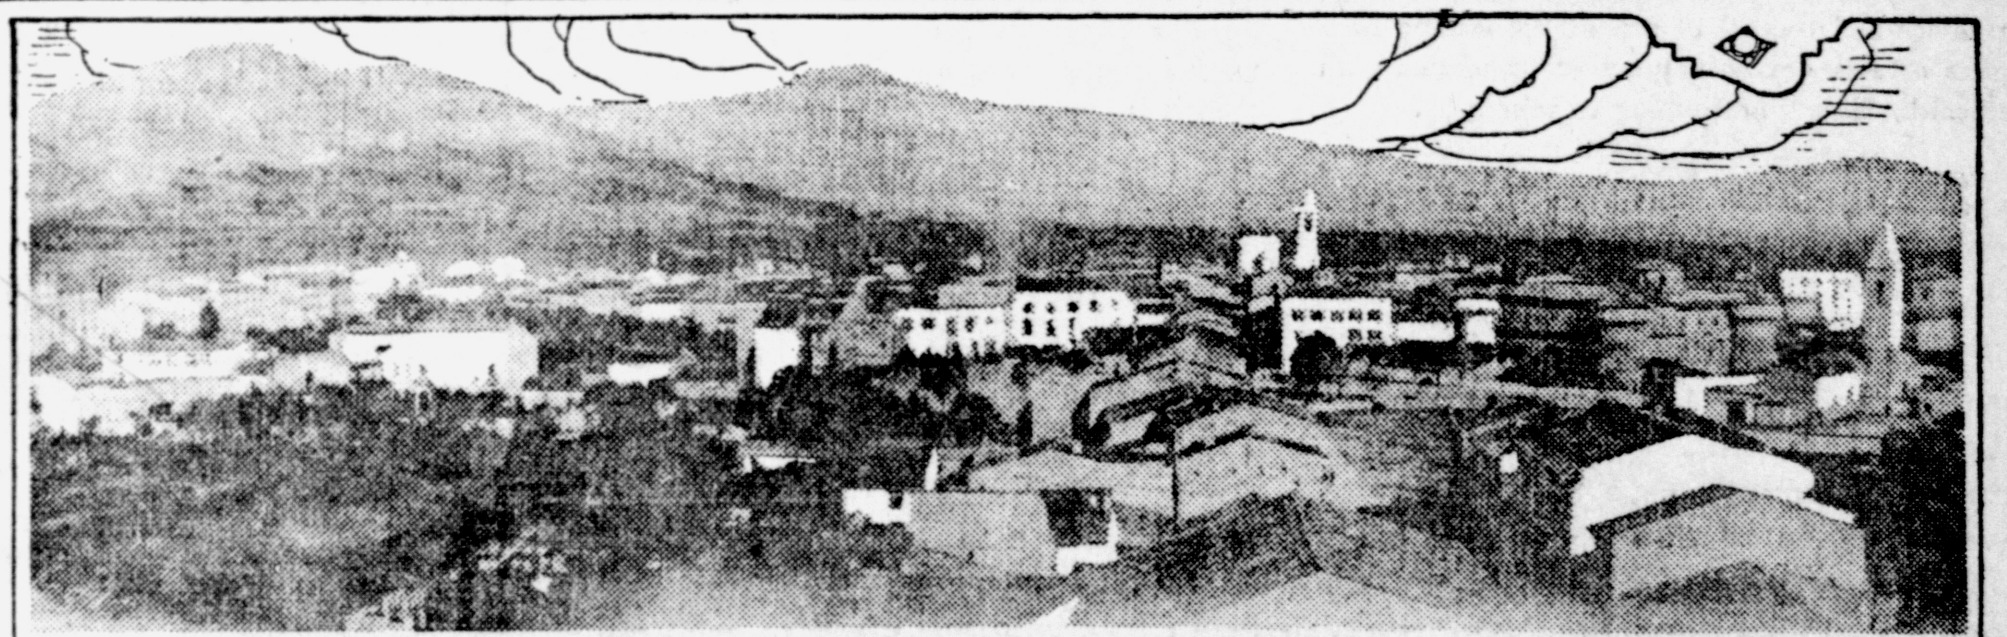

Although the government still was hopeful today that the death list would be reduced when all records are possible, it was admitted this hope was slight. The official estimate of dead was still held at 30,000, but unofficial compilations added thousands to this number. The total of the injured sufferers will reach 100,000. Thousands of families have been separated by the disaster. In many instances the parents have been killed and the children still live. In others only a father or mother survive. For tragic developments of this kind even the terrible Messina disaster is outdone.

Now that attention has been distracted from Avezzano, where the worst is known, it is realized that there are many cities and towns where the loss of life also has been enormous. At Sora it is estimated 6,000 are dead. Four thousand remain buried in the ruins at Pescina; 3,000 are dead at San Benedetto. Figures still are unobtainable from Pesdesolido, Castelliri, Atina and Isolario, where it is known there are heavy casualty lists.

In Castelliri more than 100 per-

View of Avezzano, Italy, Where Earthquake Took Its Heaviest Toll

The Italian earthquake took its heaviest toll in the interior town of Avezzano. It is estimated that in this town and vicinity 15,000 perished. Nearly all the civic officials of Avezzano, including the mayor, the under prefect, the judges, the commander of the carabinieri, parish priests, monks and nuns perished. The only notable person who survived was the head of the police. The city is now a heap of ruins.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, ache and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble. Chas. A. Beyschlag, druggist, 503 Main street.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

HER STEAMER BASKET

BY CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"At last!" breathed Ethel Smith as the great liner drew away from the pier. She voiced the delighted expectation of many another poor girl who has saved and scrimped for a long-desired trip to Europe. Even the fact that there was no one to wave farewell, no one to wish her bon voyage on this, her maiden adventure into the world of unknown, could detract from that first hour of enjoyment.

Afterward, when they were headed down the bay, she went through her stateroom. Passing through the saloon Ethel felt her first pang of loneliness. So many people appeared to know one another—to be so sure of having a delightful time. Tables were crowded with beautiful steamer flowers, some overflowing with flowers, others heaped with fruits and confections. A number of modishly attired girls carelessly scanned the cards and accepted these farewell offerings as quite an every day matter.

As Ethel entered the corridor, at the end of which was her own tiny stateroom, she involuntarily passed before the door of a luxurious room where a young girl stood at a table heaped with baskets. She was dark and slender and she was eagerly pulling the baskets here and there as if searching for something.

She glanced up sharply and saw Ethel.

"Marie!" she called, curiously, and a neat maid came and gently closed the door as Ethel hurried on with burning cheeks.

"How rude of me!" thought the girl, as she entered her own cramped quarters.

She stopped short, her blue eyes fixed in incredulous joy upon a large bamboo basket that seemed to overflow the cabin with its bountiful luxury.

"It's a mistake," she decided with a sinking heart.

But her name was plainly written on a tag, and tucked in among the fruits and packages of bon-bons was a tiny white envelope bearing her name in a familiar script.

Inside the envelope was an engraved card: "Mr. John Bennington Gray."

Under the name was scribbled a pencil line: "Bon voyage—and don't stay too long!"

"Mr. Gray!" Ethel murmured over and over again, trying to persuade herself that she was not dreaming, for John Bennington Gray was her employer in the great law firm where she worked, and he had scarcely appeared to notice the fair little girl who had so faithfully worked at his elbow for eighteen months.

John Gray was her ideal of what a man should be. Unknowingly, she had almost fallen in love with the handsome bachelor, whose position in the social world was so assured and of whose comings and goings she frequently read in the Sunday newspapers.

He had been away the day she had left the office to take this long-planned vacation—she had not even said good-bye to him; it was doubtful if he knew she was going or would miss her.

Now—she smiled dreamily—he had remembered her going, and although the basket might be merely his kindly recognition of her services in his office, nevertheless he had sent it to her and she was obviously grateful.

She tucked the card inside her blouse, took a book and a tiny box of his bonbons and went up to find her stateroom chair.

The voyage was uneventful and

HINTS AT FEDERAL ELECTION PROBES

Indiana and Illinois Investigations Said to Be Only Opening of Big U. S.
Campaign

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The federal government will go through to the end with its probe of alleged election frauds in certain Illinois congressional districts. One of the districts to be investigated with all the power of the department of justice behind the search for possible vote buyers, will be that which returned Joseph G. Cannon to the national house of representatives. This was positively stated yesterday by C. A. Karch, federal district attorney for the Danville district, just before he left Chicago.

Karch hinted that the federal probe which resulted in pleas of guilty being entered by eighty of 126 indicted at Terre Haute, Ind., and the investigation which is being made in Illinois, is only a part of other investigations of charges made of election frauds in other states.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 16.—Mayor Donn M. Roberts, who is under federal indictment with 125 other Terre Hauteans, charged with conspiring against the government to commit election frauds, has discharged from office every one of his official family who pleaded guilty when arraigned last Tuesday. Roberts gave as his reason that when a city official confesses to a crime, he is "automatically released from his duties."

Ethel found one or two young women, traveling alone like herself. They joined forces and planned to make a pilgrimage to the cathedral towns of England together.

Arriving in London, Ethel wrote a little note of gratitude to Mr. Gray. "I was almost crying with loneliness," she frankly confessed, "when I discovered your beautiful basket in my cabin. Then I began to feel so rich—with a basket heaped with good wishes."

John Bennington re-read the little note with frowning brows, and suddenly the frown smoothed out and he smiled ruefully as he touched a bell for the stenographer who was taking Ethel's place.

"Er—can you tell me Miss Smith's name?" he asked, growing rather embarrassed under the girl's cool scrutiny.

"Ethel—Ethel Smith," she replied. "Thank you," he said curtly and drew the telephone toward him. He called the number of a well known confectioner and made an inquiry.

"The basket went to Miss Ethel Smith—on the 26th—it should have been Miss Ethel Smith? We are very sorry, sir—"

"Never mind—never mind—it is quite all right now—the right party received it after all. I merely wanted to inquire just how the mistake happened, that's all."

Gray hung up the receiver and stared down at Ethel's note. What pleasure that mistake had given to the girl! But how about that other girl for whom the basket had been purchased? He saw her in his mind's eye, dark and slender, haughty and a little discontented looking, coolly accepting the best the world could offer and never questioning her right to it.

Suddenly he smiled. Pulling paper and envelopes toward him he answered Ethel's note, accepting her thanks in a matter of fact way, and then giving her sage advice concerning places to visit while doing the cathedral route and asking her to call at the Cat and Fish inn, at Exeter, and inquire after the health of his good old friend, Mrs. Wimple, the landlady.

So Ethel sent him a line telling him about the trials and tribulations of rosy Mrs. Wimple, and later on another line dictated by the grateful landlady to thank John Gray for his financial assistance that prevented the untimely demise of the Cat and Fish.

And of course each letter required an answer, and it seemed that each answer demanded an answer in its turn, for John Gray had traveled widely and had much advice to offer to Ethel and her companions.

The first of October found John Gray impatiently counting the days before the Moonland could be expected to arrive in New York. Perhaps he disliked the services of the round-eyed girl who had taken Ethel's place at his elbow. Perhaps he didn't give anything a thought save that he was hungry for the sight of a certain fair head and dainty form to which he had become accustomed for so many months that unawares their owner had crept into his heart.

Then, when the Moonland docked, John Bennington Gray was there to eagerly scan the passengers as they disembarked.

Ethel spied him with quickened pulse, his head towering above those of lesser men. Suddenly their eyes met and a look leaped across intervening space—a look that asked a question of Ethel Smith and received its answer in her averted glance and rose-invaded face.

And, seated in the taxicab which conveyed them to Ethel's boarding place, Ethel confessed her loneliness when starting on her voyage to Europe, and how his steamer basket had come as a glad surprise. She also told of the other girl—the heiress, Ethel Smith—whose stateroom had been overflowing with farewell gifts, and a smile came into John Gray's eyes.

MISS MARIE DAHL DIES AT CALEDONIA

CALEDONIA, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special.)—Miss Marie Dahle, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Dahle of Wilmington, died at her home yesterday after an illness of more than six years, suffering from cancer of the stomach.

The deceased was 32 years of age and has lived most of her life in this vicinity. For the past six years she has lived with her sister at Gladstone, Minn.

Funeral services will be held from the church at Wilmington Sunday morning, with Rev. H. J. Nein officiating.

She leaves to mourn her loss her father, mother, four brothers and four sisters.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — Why the Dollies Went On a Strike.

THE dollies in the nursery were extremely indignant, and, as there was a very large family, of course there was a lot of indignation floating around in that nursery.

Daddy and the kiddies were seated upon the divan for the evening story.

"There was a rosy cheeked wax doll named Mary that could say 'mamma' and 'papa' when hard pushed, and there was an unbreakable one that had one of those famous smiles that won't come off. Her name was Polly. There was a Jap doll named Mishka that wore a kimono and a rag doll named Rags whose head was all wabby."

"And there they sat all in a row around a tiny table talking doll language like mad, and their anger, strangely enough, was directed against their little mistress."

"Their little mistress, Emily, loved her dollies very much, so we will have to listen very intently to their dollie language to find out what their grievance could possibly be."

"Emily loves to play with me," began the rag dollie called Rags as she wobbled her head, "but my head has been loose for six months, and do you think she will take a needle and sew it on? No, indeed! She will prance in here, snatch me up and kiss me, and my head almost falls off during the process. I should think she might sew it on." And Rags wagged her head vigorously.

"That's so," squeaked the rosy cheeked wax doll. "She has played on my vocal organs so hard that she has made me all wheezy. Why, I haven't a word to say any more when she presses my talking apparatus!" And beautiful rosy cheeked Mary sighed as she toppled off her chair and lay upon the hearth rug before the blazing nursery fire.

"Well," said Mishka, the Jap doll, "she isn't very particular about my toilet. I've worn the same kimono for a year, and it is so soiled it could stand alone, but do you suppose she ever thinks of giving me a clean one?"

"All the dollies agreed save Polly. Polly sat there and grinned in the most maddening way; but, you see, poor Polly couldn't help it because her smile was fastened on to her so tightly that she couldn't leave it, as the Cheshire cat does. Then, because she persisted in laughing at them, after awhile they all began to laugh, and then they all had a jollification, and when little Emily appeared she never knew there had been a strike.

"Now you must go to bed, kiddies."

EXAMINING THE TEETH
OF THE GIFT-HORSE

Few men in the United States have such a wide reputation as John D.
Rockefeller—and it is not an exaggeration to say that few men in the public eye have been regarded with as much suspicion as the oil magnate. Whether the suspicion has been justified or not is a moot point, but that it exists is a certainty.

Mr. Rockefeller, at least, has not distinguished himself as an altruist in his active business life. In fact, it is only within the last few years, since a hundred million dollars of his money has established the Rockefeller Foundation, that Mr. Rockefeller has made any effort, apparently, to look after any but his own interests.

The Rockefeller Foundation is avowedly an organization whose object is "wholly public service," as John D. Rockefeller, Jr., recently phrased it in a statement intended to offset hostile impressions which might be aroused by the announcement of an investigation of the foundation by the Federal Industrial Relations committee. A million dollars of its income has been spent for food for the Belgians; medical and other research work of undoubted value has been prosecuted, but the name of the foundation has engendered a feeling of quasi-suspicion. "We fear the Greeks even bearing gifts."

The recent behavior of Rockefeller in the Colorado coal strike has strengthened this doubt. It is rather hard for the average man to believe that the same mind which inflexibly demands absolute dominion over its employees, which denies the right to organize and hires armed guards to enforce its will when opposed, can give up a huge fortune to the unselfish purpose of lifting the life of the world to a higher social, physical and mental plane, without a string of some kind. There are those who scrutinize the gift closely and are full of dark misgivings.

These suspicions may be as baseless as a child's fear of the dark, or there may be foundation for them.
In either case the facts should be known. If citizens have been wrongfully mistreating a man whose desire to work lasting good for mankind is a thing apart from his business conscience, or lack of it, the truth should be disclosed.

The investigation by the Industrial Relations committee comes at an opportune time. If the probe is conducted in the right spirit by the searchers and the searched, great good will result. The federal body has mapped out a line of investigation which goes below the surface and brings up the intricate doubts with which we have been burdened, as well as the bold charges which have been repeatedly hurled at the foundation. An open discussion cannot help but result in a clearer atmosphere. It is to be hoped that the foundation will do its best to help the investigators get at the facts.

IT'S NOT OUR FIGHT

The demand of Great Britain that the United States intervene to prevent Carranza from carrying out his threat to confiscate foreign concessions in Mexico, including the English oil properties, may seem to have an ominous sound. People may be led to believe it is a question, now,
of our obeying this mandate or abandoning the Monroe doctrine.

Such is not the case. The United States does not guarantee the safety of the property of Europeans in this continent. The prohibition of the Monroe doctrine is against the acquisition of territory here by European governments. Any foreign country may enter Mexico to protect its citizens, may safeguard its interests there and may seize the customs house to reimburse its people for losses. The one thing the United States says it shall not do is to seize territory for permanent occupation.

In such case why should the United States spend the money and sacrifice the lives of its citizens to protect the business hazards of the industrial adventurers of England in Mexico? In reward, perhaps, for English looting of American cargoes.

THE POETS AND WAR

Milton saw war as the fruit of the tree. There's a solemn judgment in this prophetic edict:
To overcome in battle, and subdue Nations, and bring home spoils with infinitude Man-slaughter, shall be held the highest pitch
Of human glory.

Those who have found amusement in the "Me und Gott" comedy of our naval poet may find in the Italian earthquake disaster a suggestion that "Gott" is lending "Me" a hand, after all. It will be many a day before Italy recovers from its own horror sufficiently to hanker for war.

The Winona flour mills have let their employees in on a profit-sharing plan. And flour at $7.40 per

Deutschland Ueber Alles
German land above all others,
Dear above all other lands,
That—a faithful host of brothers—
Ever more united stands;
That, from Mass to farthest Mernel,
And from Etch to Belt expands;
German land, above all others,
Dear above all other lands.

German faith and German women,
German wine and German song,
In the world shall keep the beauties
Which of old to them belong.
Still to noble deeds inspiring,
They shall always make us strong
German faith and German women,
German wine and German song!

Union right and freedom ever
For the German Fatherland!
So, with brotherly endeavor,
Let us strive with heart and hand!
For a bliss that wavers never.
Union, right and freedom stand—
In this glory bloom forever,
Bloom, my German Fatherland!

sterberg.

A Reversed Well
Victor Murdock of Kansas was one day expatiating upon the wonders of that state to a group in the house cloak room and he told this tale:

"A stranger from the east was proceeding through a certain section of Kansas when he observed what seemed to him to be a tall chimney rising above the monotonous level of the prairie.

"What is that chimney used for?"
he asked the man who was with him,
a native. "Somebody building a factory in that out of the way quarter."

"That ain't no chimney," said the other. "That's Hank Lewis' well.
Cyclone come along an' turned her inside out."—Everybody's.

Arranged

Between the football teams of two towns in Kansas this correspondence has passed:

"We challenge you to a game at any place you will name—Winfield."
"Won't meet you, unless it be in Hades—Wellington."

"Your selection of your home grounds is satisfactory to us—Winfield."

Food for the Brain

The two vacationers had fished an hour without a nibble to reward them for their patience.

"At a time like this," said the first man, "old Izaak Walton would have indulged in philosophy. Have you anything philosophical on your mind that you might work off just now to relieve the monotony?"
"Nothing but this," replied the other man. "I suppose it is by refusing to bite and compelling fish-men to philosophize that fish get the reputation of being brain food."

The Trouble

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, at a tea at the Acorn club in this city, said of New Year resolutions:

"They are splendid things—provided, of course, that they're not priggish. There's a type of girl that leans to priggish resolutions.
"In my childhood I remember a little girl came to play with me about New Year's time who was simply insufferable.

"What's the matter with her?" I asked.

"Oh," said another girl, "she's keeping all her New Year resolutions; but she'll be all right again in a day or so."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Thrifty Hackman

A local man went to Newton, Conn., the other day, in quest of an interview with Dr. Hadley, president of Yale. At the railway station he learned that the Hadley summer home was several miles distant. An elderly hackman, driving a spavined horse and a rickety carriage, waited conveniently near, and the reporter hired him for the trip.

Out through the country they drove for three or four miles. Suddenly the hackman slapped his knee and shouted: "Whoa!"

The horse whooped.
"What's the matter now?" asked the reporter.

"By crickets!" said the hackman.
"If that feller Hadley didn't leave town on the train this morning, and I clean forgot all about it!"

"It's a wonder you didn't remember before you brought me away out here," the reporter explained.

"Oh, well," replied the hackman,
"I won't charge you but half-fare. I won't charge you but a couple of dollars."—Newark News.

CHAPTER VIII. The Life of the Party.

A yelp on the front porch announced the arrival of Ben Sledge, and he appeared in the brilliantly lighted hall, holding a tightly stretched chain, to the other end of which was attached a one-eyed, stubeared, battle-scarred bull terrier, which took such a violent dislike to the intellectual-faced Marley butler that Sledge was compelled to hold him clear of the floor with one brawny hand, and spank him loudly in the ribs with the other; whereupon Bob gave a single yelping promise to be good, and Sledge let him down again.

"This is Bob, Miss Molly," introduced Sledge. "I'm sending him right back with Mike, but you said you'd like to see him."

"Delighted to meet you, Bob," laughed Molly, stooping down and patting him on the seamy head.

Bob deliberately batted his good eye with all the effect of a wink, and wagged his absurd stump of a tail by way of friendly greeting, then he suddenly made a lunge of about four feet, and strained, choking at the end of his chain, on his hind feet, with his tongue hanging out. From the rear of the lot he had heard the bark of the suspicious Smash.

"Where's Mike?" demanded Molly
bastily.

Bert Glider and five of the eight couples whom Molly had invited, had already arrived, and were now, of course, thronged eagerly in the doorways.

"What's your hurry, Molly?"
snickered loose-jointed Dicky Reynolds. "Hold your caller till I run out and get Smash. He knows me."

"Don't you dare!" shrieked Molly, distrusting him, with good reason.

Bob loosened his throat enough to answer the challenge from the kennel, and there wasn't a girl left in the doorways, except Jessie Peters, who clung to Dicky's sleeve.

"I'll go with you, Dicky," offered circular little Willie Walters, with an echo of Dicky's snicker.

"If you do, he'll bark at you," hotly retorted Molly, knowing wee Willie's cautious propensities.

The rest of the boys were for keeping up the good work, but Sledge cut short the incipient hysteria by picking up Bob by the neck, returning to the door, and booming into the night the silent potent syllable:

"Mike!"

A squatty man, who looked so much like Bob, even to a patched eye, that they could have been taken for twins, emerged from the darkness, hugged Bob to his bosom like a brother and hurried away.

Fern and Molly looked at each other with dismay. If this was the start of the evening, what else might they expect?

"Why didn't Mike take them both away?" whispered Fern. "You poor girl!"

"I'm not!" denied Molly fiercely.
"I said this morning that I'd like to see Bob, and, of course, Mr. Sledge brought him. The only trouble is he's so quick."

"He's instantaneous," corrected
Fern.

"You have to admire it," laughed Molly. "Well, the only thing I can do is to be as game as he is," and upon Sledge's return from some careful directions to an unseen companion of Mike's, she introduced him to her friends with all the spright-liness of which she was capable.

In that process, she firmly intended to make him the center of things,
and to see that he had a good time.
He relieved her of that tremendous burden, however; for, after moving through the introduction with a cordial ease which not only delighted but surprised her, until she was reminded that he had been introduced to more notables than she would probably ever see, he quietly disappeared into Marley's den, and smoked fat cigars in calm comfort, with a stein of cool beer at his elbow, leaving the young people to enjoy their hilarity without the damper of his presence.

A SHORT HISTORY
OF
MRS. MAGGIE DURBIN,
OF
209 Victory St., Little Rock, Arkansas
THE FACTS:

March 16, 1902 —"For five years I had a chronic disease of the bowels. It was called consumption of the bowels. PERUNA cured me."

Sept. 6, 1903 —"I am still in good health and will take PERUNA whenever I need a medicine. I answer every letter that comes to me from people who have read my testimonial."

Oct. 21, 1905 —"I took an awful bad cold since I wrote you last. One bottle of PERUNA cured me."
Letters were received from Mrs. Durbin in 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1911.

LATER LETTERS FROM MRS. DURBIN
Oct. 23, 1912 —"PERUNA does me more good than any other medicine
I have ever taken. It is our household remedy. I thank you many times for benefits received."

Feb. 3, 1914 —Mrs. Durbin is still an ardent friend of Peruna, praising it and recommending it to her neighbors.

All over the United States we have men and women who have been writing us occasionally for many years. PERUNA, by the assistance of our booklet, "The Ills of Life," is their main reliance in times of sickness.

ADDRESS ALL LETTERS FOR MEDICAL ADVICE TO

hostess, dropped in occasionally to see that he was satisfied, and each time she found him in exactly the same position, as placidly contented as he could possibly have been in the little back room of the Occident Saloon. On one of her visits, after answering in the affirmative, her inquiry if he was all right, he rose from his comfortable nest in the big leather chair.

"I suppose we eat," he guessed.
"I think you'd call it bluff," she laughingly returned.

"I get you," he replied. "Mostly decorations. Souvenirs?"

"The usual."

"Hand 'em these," and he thrust into her hands two bundles of small envelopes; red ones and white ones.
She looked at them blankly a moment.

"I get you," she smiled, flushing slightly as she wondered whether her adoption of his phrase was flattery or ridicule. "Red ones, in honor of the roses, are for girls; and the white ones for the boys. What are they?"

"Aw, nothing much," he diffi-dently replied, as he resumed his seat. "Season tickets for grand opera week in the red ones, and for the Athletic Club fights in the white ones. Admit two. Is it all right?"

"Is it all right? It's glorious!"

she assured him, with shining eyes.

Delighted with this unmatchable novelty, Molly was herself placing the red and white envelopes at the covers in the dining-room, when Bert Glider found her there, and closed the door after himself.

"Molly, you're carrying this Sledge joke too far!" he hotly charged.

"Who elected you?" she quietly wanted to know, and laid a white envelope at his place with extreme care, angling the corner of it just so.

"Both of us, I hope," he stated, displaying a warning signal by pulling at the top of his collar to give his throat more room. "Molly—" and he advanced toward her.

The symptoms were unmistakable.
Molly, having rounded the end of the table, slipped out through the pantry door, and handed her remaining envelopes to the intellectual-looking waiter.

"Place these on the table just as I have done; alternate red and white ones," she kindly directed, and the next time Bert saw her, she was the live center of the laughing taffy pulling. She had preferred to escape rather than to treat this matter either seriously or flippantly when she was annoyed with him.

MAYOR'S VOTE DECIDES AGAINST TOMAH SALOON

TOMAH, Wis., Jan. 16.—After an all night session of the common council recently, Mayor Vaudell cast a deciding vote to annul the liquor license of Pergande Strunk. The council held their vote to a tie. Strunk was charged with operating his saloon illegally.

Creamery Elects Officers

Herbert Wood was elected president of the Tomah creamery association at a meeting the first part of the week. D. Robertson was elected secretary, and F. Rehberg, F. Kirst and P. Pinski to the board of directors.

Won't Build School

Tomah will not have the new school building which the school district officials voted to build some time ago. A petition was circulated and presented to a special meeting of the board Tuesday. A unanimous vote was taken to rescind the order for the building. The change was made due to the heavy debt which the city is under.

Marguerite, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kelly is reported dangerously ill.

Mesdames Fix and Ellefson spent Wednesday with friends at Sparta.

Alois Fix is in Milwaukee and Chicago this week.

W. W. Warren, W. Fieting, W. E. Bartels, W. B. Naylor, W. R. McCaul,

W. E. Bosshard and M. Syverson attended the auto show at Milwaukee this week.

J. C. Crosset was at Milwaukee the fore part of the week.

M. H. Moore and wife are spending the winter at Miami, Florida. Mrs. George Hambrecht of Grand Rapids, was called home by the illness of her father, F. S. Barrows.

Charles Nechuta was adjudged insane and was taken to Mendota the last of the week.

Charles Patterson, machinist in the round house of N. C. Foster of Fairchild, is a guest at the home of Mrs. N. Hichox.

Miss Caroline Rutz spent a few days with her parents at Babcock, Wis.

F. S. Barrows, Sr., is very ill with pneumonia.

D. E. Miller has been seriously ill the past week.

Paul Austin of Sparta, was a business caller the first of the week.

Mrs. Rev. Cody of Brainard, Minn., who has been visiting relatives for some time, left for La Crosse Wednesday morning.

A party of high school boys and girls had a sleighing party Friday. They then went to the house of Mildred Skinner for an oyster supper.

Otto Franz took in the auto show at Milwaukee this week.

Ethlyn Johnson of Valley Junction made friends a visit the fore part of the week.

DeLarme Rockwood has returned from Eau Claire where he spent the winter.

You may have noticed that when the weather is good for ducks it isn't good for anybody else.

CREAMERY GROWS AT GALESVILLE

$150,000 Are Receipts for 1914 Which Is Increase of 25,000 Pounds of Butter in One Year

GALESVILLE, Wis., Jan. 16.—(Special.)—William Raichle, John Stellflug, J. A. Berg, John Dick, O. S. Berwist, William Stellflug, and J. A. Barr were elected to the board of directors of the Galesville creamery at the annual meeting of the stockholders.

William Raichle was elected president. John Stellflug was appointed vice president; O. S. Berwist, secretary, and John A. Berg, treasurer.

During 1914 the concern has manufactured 525,199 pounds of butter with receipts from the same, amounting to $150,190, which is an increase of 25,000 pounds in one year.

The dividends, improvements and operating expenses amounted to $2,695.70. Tubs, salt and other supplies totaled $3,568.12. The cost of gathering the cream was $6,796.53. The amount paid for butter fat was $131,013; average price per hundred, $39.93.

Average monthly overrun was 19.5. The cash balance in the bank at the close of the year was $8,969.05. This will be paid out for cream checks at the time of the next payment, and does not represent a large surplus.

The improvements the past year include an enlarged storeroom and a new ice house. The matter of charging the cost of hauling the cream to patrons, will be brought up at a special meeting to be held in the near future. State Inspector Duffin made an address to the stockholders on the subject of "Thin Cream" and showed conclusively that such cream is a loss to the institution.

Bank Meeting

The annual meeting of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Galesville was held this week.

Reports of the cashier and examining committee showed the bank to be in fine condition. G. O. Gilbertson was elected president; G. H. Lawrence, M. D., vice president; John A. Berg, cashier, and George O. Sagen, assistant cashier.

Firemen Banquet

The annual banquet of the local fire department will be held Friday evening, Feb. 5. A committee has been named to arrange details. Percy Sacia is chairman and the others are Will Heggy and J. L. Spors.

There will be a supper and amusements suitable for every member of the firemen's families.

Pupils Give Program

The following agricultural program was given a few days ago at the local high school by the pupils:

The Growth of Alfalfa—Frank Grover.

The Use of the Soy Bean—Robert Canuteson.

The Babcock Milk Tester—Edwin Clemenson.

Some of Our Common Weeds and What We Do With Them—Margaret Suttle.

Silos and Silage—Allan Uhl.

Hoof and Mouth Disease—Rudolph Gullickson.

The Wood Lot and Its Relation to the Farm—Cyril Nelson.

Seed Testing—Ralph Young.

Uses of Crop Rotation—Robert Grover.

Potato Culture in Wisconsin—Alice Roach.

The Garden and the Farm—Mamie Hunter.

Deposits Increase

The saving deposits in the Galesville banks have increased during the year from $67,000 to $101,000. The resources have increased from $733,000 to $804,000.

Grows Lemon

Miss Clara Christianson has a lemon tree which produced a lemon weighing twelve ounces. The tree had a large number of blossoms.

WOULD EMASCULATE WATER POWER LAW

This Is Senator-elect Huston's Comment on Recommendations for Changes Made by Philipp

DOESN'T DELAY DEVELOPMENT

Father of Bill Says No Market Is Only Cause for Lack of Investment by Speculators

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 16.—"The ultimate purpose of Governor Philipp's waterpower legislation urged in his message Thursday is to emasculate the waterpower act passed two years ago or to abandon the idea of any valuable retention of state rights," declared United States Senator-elect Paul O. Huston, who listened to the reading of the message.

"The arguments that the governor uses are parallel with if not identical to the arguments used by the waterpower attorneys in opposing the passage of the act. The governor says there has been no large development under this act. In the first place the law is scarcely a year and a half old and has not been given proper trial. Since the panic of 1907 from which this country has never fully recovered there has not been much industrial development in Wisconsin, and neither has there been much waterpower development.

During the past year and a half it is a matter of common knowledge that business has been at ebb tide and is now showing signs of approaching a crest. So that we might seasonably begin to expect a strong business and industrial revival, which means additional markets for new energy.

"One fact alone demonstrates that the waterpower act has nothing to do with delayed development. The fact appears to be that there is no market. That there is no market is shown by the fact that one of the largest waterpower developments on the Chippewa river formerly owned by the Chippewa Log and Boom company, now owned by the hydro-electric interests, is standing idle although available for use, and not one horsepower has been sold as I am informed. During the last five years this development is absolutely unaffected by the waterpower act. I of course cannot go into details of the waterpower act, aside from the fact that its regulatory features are unobjectionable even to the waterpower interests and its conservation features have the approval of the highest authorities on conservation. The best interests of the state demand that it be retained and made more perfect is possible to the end that the people's interest therein be forever preserved. The repeal or emasculation of this law would be a disastrous blunder and if not almost amounting to a crime which future generations will never forgive or forget, and its perpetrators would be justly held up to the execration of posterity."

BIRTHS INCREASE BUT MARRIAGES AND DEATHS IN COUNTY ON DECLINE

Register of Deeds A. E. Thompson's annual report on the vital statistics of La Crosse county, issued today, shows 1,011 births recorded in La Crosse county in 1914. This is an increase of twelve over 1913.

There were 89 less deaths in the county during 1914, according to the report, than in 1913.

Cupid failed in his mission to the county last year, the report shows. During 1914 there were 391 marriages in the county, while there were 423 in 1913.

government in taking the people into its confidence and admitting that a reverse had been sustained, at the same time explaining its nature, has fostered the belief that the worst is now over and General Joffre will be able to hold his present lines.

French Lose Advantage

New French artillery rushed to the Aisne is said to be holding the Germans in check. The French, however, have been unable to maintain their advantage at Notre Dame Lorette, near Carceny. It is admitted that the Germans have retaken their trenches there which were captured by the French early this week. The French, however, are making steady, although slow, progress at Bligny.

From the Somme to the Meuse the infantry of both sides remain inactive and there has been a perceptible falling off in the artillery exchanges. The Germans have been shelled from their positions along the hills to the north of Clemery, east of Pont-a-Mausson. Elsewhere on the battle line there has been little action.

Cold wave west portion; temperature will fall to near zero by Sunday morning.

For Minnesota: Generally fair tonight and Sunday except snow east portion tonight. Colder tonight with cold wave east portion. Strong north west winds.

WINONA INDORSES NEW LEAGUE PLAN

Fans in Mass Meeting Last Night Express Faith in Proposed Minnesota League

That professional baseball in La Crosse this season is a probability was admitted today by John Elliott, father of baseball in La Crosse, in discussing the outcome of the mass meeting held last night by Winona fans. If the men in La Crosse take hold of the proposition as have the Minnesotans, it is highly probable that La Crosse will have a professional club this summer.

W. R. Bryan, a sponsor of athletes in Winona, who has been suggested as president of the proposed league, was in La Crosse yesterday conferring with Mr. Elliott and Henry Rooney on the baseball situation here. He returned to Winona to attend the mass meeting, after expressing satisfaction with the prospect here. It is a matter here, Mr. Bryan said, of securing backers for the plan. The time is ripe, he thought, for the re-opening of La Crosse to organized baseball.

The "Little League," as it was called at the Winona meeting, would probably comprise the cities of Winona, La Crosse, Austin, Albert Lea, Owatonna, Faribault, Mankato and Mason City. The league, as brought out at the meeting, would be one of the most compact that it would be possible to organize. Long jumps, which have proved the undoing of more than one circuit, would be eliminated.

It is probable that either Mr. Elliott or Mr. Rooney will attend the meeting in Owatonna, January 22, called by J. S. Scovill of Austin, Minn., one of the leaders of baseball in central Minnesota. A mass meeting of La Crosse fans, it is understood, will be called some time next week to consider the entrance of the league into La Crosse.

sons were killed in the church. They were in attendance on a funeral when the building collapsed.

The residents of Boccareccio had a remarkable escape. Although every building in the town was demolished by the quake not a single person was killed and the majority were absolutely unharmed.

Hospitals Crowded.

The hospitals in Rome and Naples are all overcrowded with desperately injured persons and the hotels and public buildings that have been transformed into temporary infirmaries already are filled. Twenty of the injured died yesterday and six during last night. Many more deaths are certain.

The government has been compelled to refuse all tenders of outside aid because of the delicate international situation. Private relief agencies, however, and these include the International Red Cross, are busy aiding.

Many Must Freeze

Thousands of injured victims of the quake are still without help, and although food, fuel and clothing is being hurried into Abruzzi province from the entire surrounding region, it is feared that many must be frozen to death or die of starvation before aid can reach them.

A total of 164 distinct earthquake shocks have been registered on the seismograph of the Royal Meteorological observatory since the first shock was felt. Professor Palazzo, the director, said today that there were forty-nine slight shocks yesterday. He believes, however, that there will be few additional and that they will be of little importance.

The report of the bishop of the Marcia district, to Pope Benedict, described his charge as "a great cemetery."

CHARGED WITH ENTERING HOUSE

Hugh Robertson was arrested at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, charged with taking $45 worth of property from the boat house of August Kutzboriski, assistant superintendent of the Segelke and Kohlhaus Manufacturing company. The arrest follows a series of complaints that La Crosse boat houses were being robbed.

TOMKINS REPLIES TO PHILIPP ON FORESTRY MATTER

Says State Is Too Wise to Abolish Project All Nations but China Deem Necessary

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 15. — Gov. Philipp's statements in his message with reference to the development of the forestry reserve were the subject of a careful analytical reply to Senator A. Pearce Tomkins of Ashland, chairman of the legislative committee on forestry today. Gov. Philipp recommends that the work of reforestation be stopped.

"Wisconsin is surely too wise to abandon a project that practically all nations except China have found indispensable and profitable and that many sister states in the union are maintaining with great benefit," declares Senator Tomkins.

U. S. Has Helped

"Gov. Philipp contends in his message that the federal government should do the reforestation work in Wisconsin because the timber in this state was cut and sent all over the United States and the whole country had the benefit of it; that if another crop of timber is secured, the benefit again will go to the whole nation, and that therefore it is unfair to tax the people of the state at the present time to secure future benefits for the whole nation."

Ceded 200,000 Acres

"The governor overlooks the fact that some 200,000 acres of land that were set aside as forestry reserve lands by the state, were part of a gift made by the United States to the state, and that in more recent years the United States has given to its state 637 islands as additions to its forest reserve and also 20,000 acres of land, the proceeds of the sale of which can be used only to reforest the permanent forest reserve lands. The federal government is also giving $5,000 a year for fire protection work in the state on the watersheds of important rivers. Just what more the governor would ask is not specified."

Is Good Business

"Gov. Philipp's contention that reforestation is not a good business proposition because it takes from 50 to 100 years to grow timber, is not borne out by the experience of other countries. The European nations are obliged to raise forests even though their denser population makes it necessary to use to the utmost all agricultural lands and they find their forest crop very profitable. In fact so profitable are some of these municipal forests that outsiders are required to pay a fee to become a resident of the municipality and share in its benefits. Moreover, merchantable timber can be grown in much less than 50 years."

ed to marry me and then deserted me. I never would have gone if he hadn't promised to marry me."

This was the statement to her father of the Dimon girl, who, repentant, returned to her home with Detective Joseph McGrath from St. Joseph, Mich., where she had been deserted by Campbell.

It became known today that a charge of embezzlement may be preferred against Campbell, following the appearance of two checks, one for five dollars and another for ten dollars, cashed by Miss Dimon on Figue Bros. and Ferris Bros., stores on the north side. The checks, which were made payable to Miss Dimon and were signed by Campbell, were given to the girl by Campbell, according to her story.

Clerk Responsible

That the discovery of Miss Dimon's whereabouts was due to a hotel clerk's preceptive power became known today.

Arriving at St. Joseph, Mich., Miss Dimon registered at the hotel under an assumed name, Campbell using his own.

"We'll be married Saturday morning," young Campbell told her. "I've got business in Detroit and will be back."

He went to Detroit and returned and again promised that the ceremony would take place Saturday.

Claiming he had "business" in another city he left. Saturday morning he failed to appear.

Confesses Runaway

It was then that the hotel clerk interviewed the girl.

"Tell me your real name," hazarded the clerk.

Miss Dimon insisted that the name under which she had registered was her own.

"You better tell me the truth," persisted the clerk. "That boy promised to marry you, didn't he?"

Miss Dimon confessed the entire story.

The clerk immediately notified her father in La Crosse, who got in touch with the police. Miss Dimon was turned over to the wife of the chief of police there and detained until Detective McGrath arrived.

He performs thirty-three distinct feats of muscle stretching and cartilage expansion, and sustains 260 pounds by his neck muscles. He uses no special apparatus, and appears in ordinary tight. His exhibition should be most interesting.

WEST SALEM MAN ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Ole Emilson Arrested for Alleged Assault with Intent to Rob William Reid

Upon complaint of Judge A. J. Phillips, West Salem, Ole Emilson, West Salem, was yesterday taken into custody charged with assault, with intent to rob, upon William Reid, a bachelor, living near the Ne-shonoc bridge, just outside the limits of the village of West Salem.

The alleged assault occurred Sunday night and, according to information received in La Crosse yesterday, it was believed that Reid was in a critical condition, the result of the affair.

Deputy sheriffs and Captain Lawrence Dugan of the La Crosse police department went to West Salem and arrested Emilson and then proceeded to the home of Reid.

When the officers arrived he was carrying in wood and seemed to be little, if any, the worse for the experience.

INTERESTS SEE RETURN TO THE "GOOD OLD DAYS"

Not Since 1899 Have Their Representatives Displayed Such Proprietorship at the Capitol

BIG BUSINESS MEN "ON JOB"

Old Wheelhorses of Republican Party Gather for Inauguration and Opening of Session

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 16.—Business is to have a large influence in the 1915 legislature and is to receive kindly and generous consideration by the Philipp administration. At least such is the confident expectation of business itself. Not since 1899 have the representatives of big business come into the capitol with such an air of proprietorship as they have displayed this year both at the inauguration of the governor and at the party caucuses which decided the organization of the two houses of the legislature. No legislature which has met in Madison within the last fifteen years has attracted to Madison so many of the old wheel horses of the stand-pat branch of the republican party which served the special interest so long and so well.

Just a glance at the names of those who came to Madison either to attend the inauguration ceremonies or to participate in the organization of the legislature will show that the "good old days" are assumed to have returned. Among those representing large business interests who have made their appearance in Madison since the opening of the Philipp administration are:

Elliott Nash of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, rumored to be Gov. Philipp's choice for Harlow's place on the railroad commission.

E. F. Porter of the Soo line.

Henry J. Killilea of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad.

Gustav Pabst of the Pabst Brewing company.

S. J. Glass of the Milwaukee Gas company.

R. O. Jasperson of the Milwaukee Gas company.

H. O. Seymour of the Wisconsin Telephone company.

K. B. Stearns of the Milwaukee Street Railway and Electric Light company.

Henry Tyrell of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company.

Eugene Whetstone of the Union Refrigerator Transit Co.

E. A. Wadams of the Wadams Oil and Grease company.

Chester D. Barnes of the Merchant and Manufacturers' association of Kenosha.

Otto H. Falk, former president of the Milwaukee Merchants' and Manufacturers' association.

Among those participating in the inaugural ceremonies and those attempting to assist in organizing the legislature were many who were closely identified with the organization in the republican party which has been enacted during the last fifteen years.

The list includes:

Former Senator W. G. Bissell, secretary of the Wisconsin Republican league, more generally known as the "Eleventh Story league";

Colonel Dan B. Starkey, one time private secretary to former Governor Scofield and active in the affairs of the Wisconsin Republican league;

Max Jeffries of Janesville, a leader in the 1904 Rump campaign;

M. B. Rosenberg of Wausau, another prominent figure in the Rump campaign of 1904.

C. E. Babcock, son of the former congressman;

Henry W. Barney of Necedah, secretary to former Congressman Babcock;

Benjamin Webster, Platteville, appointed postmaster by Congressman Babcock;

Richard Meyer of Lancaster;

W. E. Howe of Boscobel;

Frank Bentley of Baraboo, secretary of the Babcock campaign committee;

Former Senator Henry Hagemeyer, wealthy brewer of Green Bay;

Neal Brown of Wausau, attorney for the water power interests;

Thomas B. Reed of Appleton, former United States marshal, appointed by Senator Spooner;

John Harris of Elkhorn, former senator and later legislative agent for the St. Paul railroad;

Former Senator John M. Whitehead of Janesville;

R. L. Morse, Fond du Lac;

Fred W. Coon of Edgerton, journal clerk in the legislature of 1899;

Charles Coon of Milwaukee, deputy game warden under former Governor Scofield.

These and many others came to Madison to help launch the Philipp administration upon a successful career. Inasmuch as one of them said "We have waited fifteen years for this day" it seems fair to assume that they consider this a return to the good old days.

CARRANZA RECALLS EMBARGO ON OIL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A dispatch to the British embassy today from Vera Cruz stated that the Carranza embargo on oil shipments had been partially raised. The message did not clearly state Carranza's concessions. It is believed that that portion of the decree annulling certain solely to oil exports from Vera Cruz and possibly Tampico, but not to the decree cancelling foreign concessions.

An explanation of Carranza's decree cancelling oil concessions in Mexico, against which the United States and Great Britain have made vigorous protests, amounting almost to an ultimatum, will be made to Secretary Bryan and British Ambassador Spring-Rice today.

Eliseo Arrondondo, Carranza's representative here, will tell Bryan that the oil companies are themselves responsible for their plight, by acting upon the presumption that Villa would soon drive Carranza out of the Tampico oil district, and paying their taxes to the Gutierrez government instead of to Carranza.

It is unlikely that either Great Britain or the United States will accept the explanation, but will insist upon annulment of the decree by Carranza.

PAIGE

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

Again The Paige Leads

This Time It's—

The World-Famous Glenwood "Four-36" At $1075

This is the same car—feature for feature—that amazed the entire motor car industry when it was offered at $1275. This is the same car from headlight to taillight—to the smallest cotter pin that you have heard repeatedly called—"The greatest automobile value in the world"—and when you heard that—the car listed at $200 more than the present price.

Now you begin to see why this is a big announcement—what it means to the man who has patiently awaited the coming of a real quality car at popular price.

Three Paige conditions have made this amazing price possible.

The strong financial condition and business foresight of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, have enabled them to buy materials at a greater advantage than ever before.

The Glenwood has given universal and absolute satisfaction. Because of that no mechanical changes have been necessary. Because of that there have been no high experimental and engineering costs.

These facts together with the great savings effected by Paige manufacturing methods are responsible for the new record-breaking price of the Glenwood "Four-36".

You know the Glenwood's reputation—you know it as "The World-Famous Glenwood"—the greatest automobile value in the market. You know also that that reputation was gained with the price at $1275. You can realize then what that same value is at a price of $1075.

Go into the very vitals of the Glenwood. The Paige motor—The multiple disc clutch—silent chain drive to auxiliary shafts—Gray & Davis large unit electric system—Bosch magneto—combination force feed and constant level splash lubrication—the Stewart carburetor. Go thoroughly into every part of the Glenwood.

See the car—note its lines—its 116 inch wheel base—its roominess—its luxury. Drive it and ride in it. Convince yourself of its remarkable value.

We are confident you will agree that the Paige Glenwood not only has the greatest combination of high grade features found in any popular priced motor car—

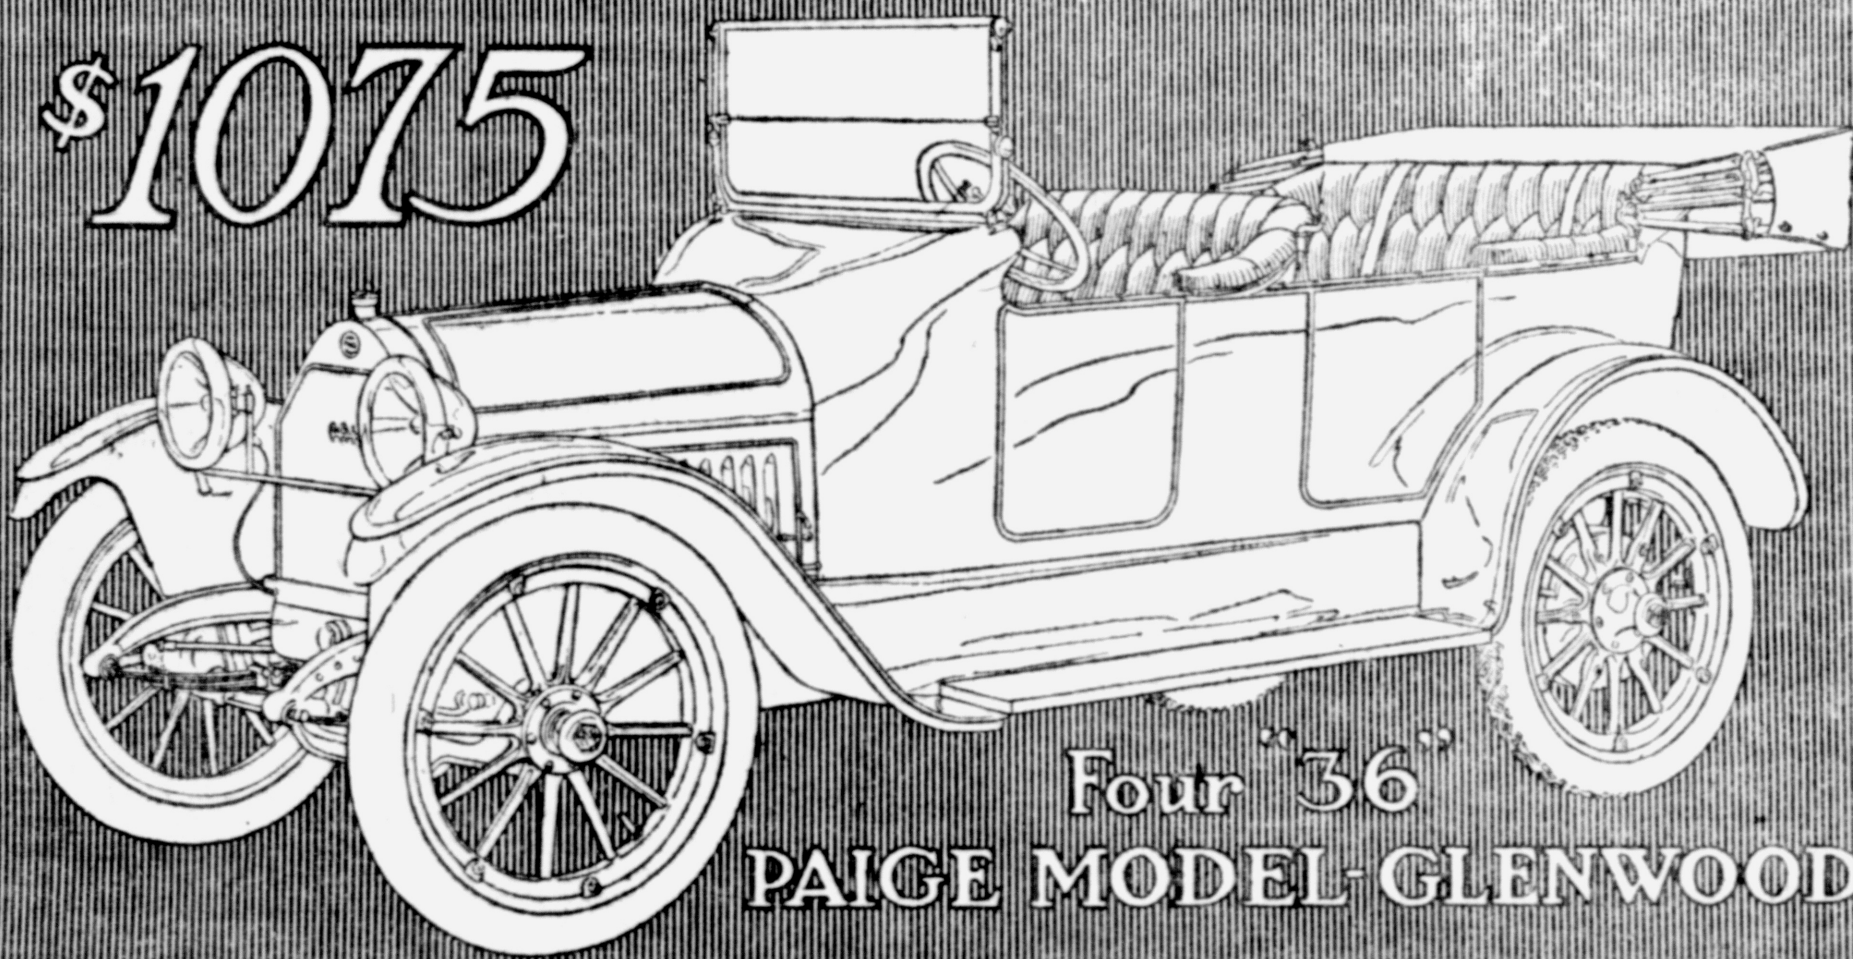

But that the car stands today down to its smallest cotter pin, the greatest four-cylinder value in America. See it—Ride in it—Investigate it. That's all we ask.

FANATICAL FANCIES

"To the victor belongs the spoils" seems to be the little piece of philosophy to which Joe Shugrue is adhering with "characteristic Jersey City tenacity." Whether Joe is victor or not some people doubt, but that he is raking in the spoils is beyond doubt. And he will continue to do so for some time, according to all indications.

Matches with Wolgast, Packey McFarland and Joe Rivers are in sight, the last named at Milwaukee. Several promoters are after the easterner for headlining mixes. Going has been easy for Joe since he hot-footed Charley White from the ring recently at Madison Square garden.

"Hurrah for Meinert, he's a grand

If normal school was ever surprised it must have been last night when they took the southerners into camp decisively. Campion, it is understood, were anticipating an easy victory such as they won last year. Sad for them, but true, the tables have turned. And Meinert did half of the shoving with six baskets. The curtain went down on a 25 to 13 score. Campion is hoo-dooed.

JIMMY DUFFY TOO MUCH FOR DUNDEE

Lefts and Rights of the Buffalo Fighter Stop Rushes of the New Yorker

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 16.—It was the consensus of opinion today that Johnny Dundee would have had a chance with Jimmy Duffy last night if the latter had consented to have his left arm strapped to his side. Without this handicap, however, Johnny took a beautiful lacing from the Buffalo boy.

Dundee's jumping jack tactics had Duffy at sea the first three rounds, which went to the New Yorker. Then Jimmy solved his opponent's peculiar delivery and his left began mauling the little Italian's countenance with painful regularity. In the seventh round alone he landed twenty-eight clean lefts, by actual count.

In the final period a salvo of rights and lefts had Johnny hanging on desperately. Duffy had a nine pound weight advantage.

INDOOR BASEBALL LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Six Teams Form League to Play Indoor Game Beginning February First

The Scholastic Indoor Baseball league, similar to the league organized last year, has been formed in La Crosse to begin play early in February.

The league will compose of six clubs, the Normal, High school, W. E. U., Company M. North Side Athletic club and Y. M. C. A. teams. It is probable that a club representing Company B will later join the organization.

The games of the league will be played on the floors of the Y. M. C. A., the Normal school and the High school. Ten games will comprise the schedule, each team to play each of the remaining five twice. In case of the entrance of Company B the schedule will necessarily be lengthened to twelve games.

Competition in the league is expected to be keen, considering the fact that several of the teams will be made up of stars of last summer's city playground leagues. Much good material is available from the business colleges of the city and from students attending the Normal and High schools.

CAMPION COLLEGE FALLS TO NORMAL

For the first time in the history of local basketball, La Crosse normal school last night defeated Campion college by the score of 25 to 13. The game was the stiffest the local men have ever experienced.

Success is attributed to the powerful defensive work of Strum and Wachter. Meinert at forward starred, netting a total of twelve points. Weiss played his usual strong game and completely outplayed the opposing man at center.

The Campion men were hard losers the fight being a grim contest from start to finish. The lineup for the locals was Weiss, center; Strum and Wachter, guards; Meinert and Byers, forwards.

But it is easier for the average man to fall in love with a woman than it is for him to stay there.

CHURCH NEWS

Religious Bodies Prepare for Big Year

Without exception the religious bodies of the United States are preparing for their greatest year. Eugene M. Camp, the well known authority, in his outlook for 1915, states that plans of these bodies are not along the lines now pushed by "Billy" Sunday, but along scientific ones, with particular reference to material plans. Protestant leaders who have in the past years condemned Sunday and his methods, are now praising him because he reaches men and women and helps some of them to lead better lives. One by one Protestant leaders have been won over, until now almost all opposition to Sunday has vanished.

Nevertheless, 1915 plans are not in Sunday's direction. There are planned many meetings of a character provided by Sunday, Chapman and others, but the main emphasis is economic, scientific and similar safe lines that almost everybody can follow, when taught how. In scattered communities, some country, some city, tremendous progress has already been made in these directions.

Observe Anniversary. Congregationalists take this year the first steps toward observance of the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. Episcopalians observed in 1907 a similar anniversary of the planting of English Christianity at Jamestown, and four years later at Williamsburg, with its William and Mary College, by the making of a thank offering of $750,000 by men alone.

The national council, changed now to meet every other year, comes together this year at New Haven, and here this Pilgrim landing observance will be decided upon.

Methodists are also in the money raising class for 1915. They talk of as much as $15,000,000. Their cause is the taking care of aged ministers. This cause demands $1,200,000 yearly. An elaborate system has been worked out for pension funds in many conferences.

Closely allied to this larger Methodist campaign is one for $250,000 as a war relief fund. Methodists in America are supporting in India missionaries and their families who have heretofore been supported by Germany.

To Help Country Churches

Presbyterians have half a dozen big projects for the year. One is the paying of the debts resting on mission boards, a denial week is just now closing, but returns from it are not yet in. Through the regular agencies, Presbyterians north and south are taking up this year the problems of the country church. They are also taking hold of education on peace lines in Sunday schools, and between Presbyterians United and South progress is making toward organic unity. Presbyterian North and the Reformed churches, Dutch and German, are talking organic union. The largest labor and emigrant work in the country is carried on by these up-to-date Presbyterian enthusiasts.

Baptists north and south are determined to put through in 1915 a $300,000 Judson memorial fund to endow a church in New York city that is named after the famous pioneer foreign missionary. Co-operating with the Baptists south, the northern Baptists are planning to reorganize their extensive work in Mexico so soon as such action may be possible. Disciples of Christ have in hand one of the biggest programs of any religious body. While chiefly financial, it is to be accompanied by revivalistic and educational work. The proposition is to send forth one thousand trained workers, and to raise $4,000,000. Missions, benevolence and education are to be the financial beneficiaries.

Plan Preaching Campaign. Episcopalians are almost the only large body having no financial plans of commanding importance on hand for the year. They are discussing, instead, the organization of their work, missions and education in particular. They are getting provinces into working shape, aiming to divide national burdens and localize problems, and near the end of the year will enter upon a preaching campaign that aims to bring into the field all of the foremost speakers among clergy and laymen.

With a better feeling between Jews of varying views, American Jews enter the year 1915 with a far larger vision of their place and part in America and the world than ever before. Zionists' ambitions, once derided here, are now supported in most quarters, and there are reasons to believe that 1915 will see the beginning of a political state in Palestine.

The supreme task before the Vatican, a task in which American Catholics are asked to have part, is bringing about peace between nations now at war. The new Pope is said to think or talk of little else than how the Catholic church may serve the cause of peace. To this end English, American and other diplomacy is sought to be drawn in. Even diplomatic relations with France, broken off ten years ago, are sought to be renewed.

Orthodox Churches Growing. Smaller religious bodies have plans for 1915, but it is an interesting fact in the history of Christianity in America that the small bodies are combining with the larger ones, or if not doing so are making little impression upon America. There are exceptions, of course, but this is interesting to note that bodies that are most orthodox are growing most rapidly in numbers, wealth and influence. By orthodox is meant, not adherence to customs that may happen to be venerable, but loyalty to Jesus Christ as God and Saviour. No observer of things religious, but has soon that sectarian differences are being lost in common adherence to Christ.

With a common purpose such as has not obtained since civil war times, if it obtained even then, religious bodies in America are enter-

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling of the hair.

A well known down-town druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. It's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two; it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

LORD STRATHCONA PAYS HUGE TAX

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 16.—The estate of Lord Strathcona, builder of the Canadian Pacific railway and a financial backer of J. J. Hill in his pioneer days in railway building, has paid into the Dane county treasury $104,000 in inheritance taxes on his Wisconsin railroad holdings. Most of the amount goes into the state treasury.

NOTICE.

In the matter of the taking of a strip of land twenty (20) feet wide through the parcel of land adjoining Block Two (2) of Campbell's Addition on the south, for the purpose of laying out, opening, and extending the alley running north and south from Rublee street to Gohres street, between George street and Wood street.

In the matter of laying out, opening, widening and extending Third street North, from the south line of Grove street to a point two hundred forty feet (240 feet) south thereof. In the matter of taking a strip of land sixteen feet wide through Weimer's Addition (unrecorded), for the purpose of laying out, opening and extending an alley north and south through said addition, from La Crosse street to the south line of said addition, between Eighteenth street and the east line of said addition.

Notice is hereby given that on the 8th day of January, A. D. 1915, the Common Council of the City of La Crosse duly passed a resolution, whereby it appropriated and set apart in the hands of the City Treasurer a sum of money equal to the amount of damages, and balance of damages and benefits, where the damages exceed the benefits, awarded by the Commissioners in the above entitled matters, which award has been confirmed by the said Common Council as to said matters; and

That pursuant to said resolution so passed, the undersigned City Clerk of said City of La Crosse has certified to the City Treasurer a copy of said award of damages or balance of damages and benefits as aforesaid, as confirmed by said Council.

And notice is further given that the awards and damages and balance of the damages and benefits as aforesaid therein are ready to be paid by the City Treasurer of said city at his office, to the person entitled thereto, upon each such claimant furnishing an abstract of title showing himself entitled to the same, and giving receipt for said benefits, damages and balances, and if required so to do by said treasurer, upon his furnishing of a bond to the said treasurer for the use of said city, with good and sufficient sureties, to hold said city harmless from all loss, costs and expenses in case any other person should claim and recover said damages or balances or any part thereof.

Dated at the City of La Crosse, Wisconsin, this 12th day of January, A. D. 1915.

E. H. HOFFMAN,
City Clerk of the City of La Crosse.
J. E. HIGBEE,
City Attorney.

CAN BAIL SHIPS HELD AS PRIZES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A new effort by the British government to relieve the trans-Atlantic shipping situation, was announced today. The British embassy issued a statement declaring that Great Britain will not oppose release upon bail of ships now held in prize courts. This concession, it was pointed out, is expected to partially relieve the present shortage of shipping tonnage.

ing upon the year 1915 with a determination to show that they have not failed because war overtook Europe. Baptist, Episcopal and other leaders are proclaiming the necessity for the maintenance and multiplication of spiritual dynamo. Almost every plan of every religious body, even if it have money as its goal, is this spiritual gospel. Never was it stronger. Never did it have central place in more plans than now.

THE ROAD To HEALTH

"Gold that buys HEALTH can never be ill spent."—Webster in "Westward Ho."

By DR. J. M. FURSTMAN
Health Commissioner.

That the greatest factor in medical progress, especially during the last 25 years, has been the work of laboratories cannot be questioned. Today the physician who is unable to command the services of a well equipped laboratory cannot apply modern methods to the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of many pathological conditions. However faithful to the duties of his profession, however wide his reading and clinical experiences, through no fault of his own, he becomes more and more the representative of a bygone age, and his patients and the community in which he lives, the victims of civic neglect. This is true of hospitals, asylums and other institutions under medical control of private physicians.

In many of the larger cities throughout the United States, the value of a municipal laboratory has been recognized and the need met, but with great variations in scope and efficiency.

That the smaller cities have lagged far behind in furnishing laboratory facilities, is a matter of common knowledge, and that this neglect has been a factor in diminishing the efficiency of sanitary control and thus accounting in part for the higher death rate in the smaller cities and rural communities is hardly to be doubted.

In regard to the expense attached to the establishment of a well equipped laboratory, surely there can be no more important function of the life of the citizens, and if economy must be practiced it should be at the expense of other public work. The principal duties of a municipal laboratory are as follows:

Examine material admitted for diagnostic purposes by officers of the department. This enables the health commissioner through his executive subordinates to determine the origin and exercise control by proper preventive measures, of the spread of local epidemics.

Provide for the examination of material sent in by physicians and institutions for the diagnosis of infectious diseases, such as diphtheria, tuberculosis and typhoid fever. Make routine examinations of water and milk, both chemical and bacteriological.

SAYS U. S. OFFERS WELCOME TO ATTACK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—"Unarmed, unready, undefended, the United States offers a standing invitation to aggression and attack, and the idea, still popular, or used for purposes of oratory by some people, that we can meet all dangers by springing to arms when the moment comes, is a dream so wild that it would be grotesque if it were not tragic."

This was the statement of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts to the senate Friday afternoon, in urging the adoption of his resolution providing for an inquiry into the military preparedness of this country.

TURKS ADVANCING ON RUSS FRONTIER

TEHERAN, Jan. 16.—The Turkish forces which occupied Tabriz are now pressing on toward Djulfa and will be supported by a further Turkish contingent which is advancing through Urmia Salmas. The Turkish forces are advancing for the purpose of securing control of the highways and railroads that lead to the Russian frontier.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The local grain market was very jump today, all three cereals being more or less similarly affected. The marked reaction, which at one time carried May wheat down to 140, was due to the efforts by many on the long side to turn paper profits into cash and a desire on the part of many to rid themselves of their holdings over Sunday. Wheat opened down on yesterday's close 1-2 to 5-8c. The recessions were steady until bottom price for the day was touched; then followed a turn upward. The loss on the day in wheat was from 2 7-8c in May to 1 1-2c in July.

Corn also suffered a set-back. Heavy unloading by longs was the cause. The opening was down over yesterday's close 1-8c to 1-4c. Closing prices showed losses of from 3-4 to 5-8c over the opening.

Oats acted with the other cereals. Provisions felt the general sentiment and was inactive with prices fairly steady.

Forest to Divide Honors
on Majestic Bill

Five acts of "big time" vaudeville, three of which are among the most noted in the country, will make up the bill at the Majestic theater the first half of next week. Carl McCullough, the "Joy Germ," a fairy spectacle called the "Enchanted Forest," and "The Mudtown Minstrels," will divide honors on the program.

stars in the vaudeville firmament. His act, "Footlight Impressions," which primarily travesties noted actors of the "legit," but in its mirthful scope holds a humorously distorted mirror up to the world in general, has taken audiences by storm all through the east. McCullough is a machine gun of comedy, and his execution is as deadly as the work of Gatling's pet.

Menlo Moore's "Enchanted Forest" is a beautifully staged idealization of nursery tales. It is a fantastic, fanciful and charming presentation of Mother Goose, pleasing to the kiddies for its familiar association, and delightful for the grown-ups for the beauty and delicacy of its effects.

Creighton Brothers and Belmont make up a trio of humorous burlesquers of minstrelsy that is reported to be screamingly funny. The Mudtown Minstrels are an antiquated old man from the country as interlocutor, and two nearly as old endmen. The tuba band, quartet and tango dance is side-splitting.

A singing wolf, with his chubby master, will also appear on the bill, under the style of John A. West and company, "Company" is the wolf.

Archer and Carr will appear in a clever musical comedy skit called "The Fortune Teller," a laughable and pleasing arrangement of funning and song.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

REPORTS MASSACRE BY TURK INVADERS

Governor of Persian Province Arrives in Tiflis After Escaping from Tabriz

PETROGRAD, Jan. 16.—Souda Ed Dowlah, former governor of the province of Azerbaijan, northern Persia, has arrived at Tiflis after escaping from Tabriz with a story of massacres by the Turkish forces now over-running Persia.

He declares he posted 1,500 troops at one of the Maindab forts and 1,200 at the other while he with 400 horsemen defended the bridge, thus enabling refugees to escape to Maraga. After ten hours of fighting his guard was annihilated, he said, the Turks bringing up machine guns and using them to advantage. He and three survivors fled to Tabriz and later to Tiflis.

The former governor says the Turks and Kurds massacred the Christian population of Maindab, also many refugees who had taken refuge there.

All the staffs of the consulate and the banks of Tabriz escaped to Tiflis.

ANNUAL INTER-ORATORICAL SOCIETY DEBATE ON MONDAY

Freight Rates Five Per Cent Increase

Justification is Subject for W.

P.-L. D. Spouting

Match

The annual inter-society debate will be held Monday evening in the high school, between the Wendell-Phillips and Lincoln-Douglas Debating societies. The question is "Resolved, that the five per cent increase in freight rates, demanded by the railroads, is justifiable." The Wendell-Phillips will uphold the affirmative of the question. Their team is composed of Nathanson, McLaughlin, Roche and McKivergan. Baker, R. Anderson and H. Anderson will defend the Lincoln-Douglas side of the tussle.

High school men will try out for the inter-scholastic debate team in the school auditorium Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The question is "Resolved, that the United States army should be increased to 500,000 men." A large number are expected to try out. Mr. Ernst has charge of the team and will be assisted by Mr. Leach, who coached the team two years ago. The final debate will take place on the evening of February 19 in the school auditorium. It has not been finally decided what schools the La Crosse teams will debate, but probably Tomah will be met in this city and Viroqua at Viroqua.
